Boys Not Afraid of Work.

When Mr. Epison said that he was out of patience with college men because they shrank from hard and dirty work he was imputing to one group in the community a failing which does not distinguish it from all other groups in the community. There are college men who shrink from hard and disagreeable tasks and ich remained in his hauds from hard and disagreeable tasks and in 1918. Thus Human beshirk them; and there are plenty of 1920.

Anybody who is minded to accept Mr. Epison's complaint in its entirety would do well to read the anouncement just made from Princeion University that during the last college year students who are putting themselves through college in whole or in part earned $161,530. In ter dinners, they will say, hardboiled the employment bureau maintained by the university 390 students were enrolled last year. Onion Soup at 5 A. M.

The distinguished visitor from France has without doubt planted a new issue in many American minds. This is the breakfast issue. It confronts our conservatism with the deadly argument of fact.

Here is a man 81 years old who rises at 5 o'clock, eats onion soup, and goes forth like a lion into the fray of the world.

Shall Americans emerge from their isolation of sausage and pancakes at 7:30 A. M. and follow Mr. CLEMEN-CHAU? It is a big question, far more vital to most of our hundred million breakfasters than Europe's fate.

America will demand further de tails before taking pattern from France's grand old man. How is the average cook induced to rise before 5 A. M.? Is the Schweitzerkäse grated in the onion soup or served on the side? Are the eggs of the five minute or the twenty minute sort?

At 5 o'clock in the morning the soup is heating and the egg water coming to a boil? Have some coffee No. for coffee is not on the program. If you live in a house you can let the cat out, take the milk in, accelerate the furnace, rustle the ash car and indulge in gymnastics.

Getting the rest of the family to join the revolutionary movement would be an interesting exercise of will power. Onion soup is for wineggs are sacred to picnics, and Swiss cheese is no good without been Such obstructionists must be talked to severely. They do not understand what is good for them. They do not realize that the tottering world must be made over.

It is heartening to remember, in connection with the Clemenceau program, that many ancient New Englanders started the day with nie. But the cheese they ate had no holes in it. And they lolled in bed until 5 o'clock on special occasions only.

Horsemen of the Old School.

Occasionally a man whose life has been spent among horses and who refuses to give the motor car credit for any good quality except its utility furnishes a surprise to New Yorkers who do not recall the time when the who do not recall the time when the horse drew not only pleasure vehicles M but the street cars as well. Thus the other day Father Bul Daly, known as the Sage of Hartford, once power on the running turf and the developer of clever jockeys, appeared on Third avenue driving a pony to a regulation runabout and leading two thoroughbreds.

It is almost fifty years since DALY was first seen on the metropolitan turf. To-day his head is without a gray hair, and though his stable has dwindled to a couple of selling platers he is strong for the horse. Even in getting from one race course to another his thoroughbreds walk instead of luxuriating, as do the members of other stables, in motor vans with padded sides.
